U.N. Asks Syria, Israel, To Quit Disputed Zone

NO REPLY TO DEMANDS

JERUSALEM—AP—Israel charged that Syrian gunners poured new fire Wednesday night on an Israeli settlement in a demilitarized zone southeast of the Sea of Galilee. An Israeli army spokesman said one Israeli guardsman was wounded. He said fire from automatic weapons and mortars hit the Beit Katzir settlement but that fire was not returned from the Israeli side.

In a report from Tel Aviv, he claimed Syrians opposite the southeastern shore of the Sea of Galilee fired machine-gun bursts and rifle shots into Israeli territory. He said the fire was not returned. There was no immediate confirmation from the UN or other sources. The spokesman denied an earlier Damascus report that Syrian soldiers had fired on an Israeli patrol and Israeli machine-guns fired back during the day.

DENY ISRAELI PRESENCE

Radio Damascus declared the U.A.R.'s 1st Syrian army is ready to "strike quickly and hard" against any new Israeli hostility.

In Egypt, Syria's partner in the U.A.R., Radio Cairo broadcast a statement that Syria is ready to discuss the problem of the disputed zone within the mixed armistice commission called on both Israel and Syria Tuesday to withdraw all armed forces, armed civilians and weapons from the zone.

Albert Grand, a UN spokesman, said earlier "we are still waiting for a reply from Syria and Israel."

Most of the action has been in the area of Tawafix village, slightly less than two miles east of the southern tip of the Sea of Galilee.

The spokesman added, however, that Israel is prepared to talk over the Syrians "all possible measures which could be helpful to maintain quiet and order" along the frontier.

There was a further declaration from Oslo concerning the 600-man Norwegian battalion in the 5,000-man UN emergency force policing that frontier.

NORWEGIAN STATEMENT

Foreign Minister Halvard Lange issued a statement saying the Norwegian government "has not considered any withdrawal of the Norwegian contingent."

Tuesday Norway's army command said the Norwegian troops would be pulled out of the danger zone and probably ordered home if serious fighting broke out between Israel and the U.A.R.

Israelis showed no interest in such a debate. "Syria has no standing in the zone," an Israeli foreign ministry spokesman declared. He said the zone "is wholly under Israeli sovereignty, though earmarked as a demilitarized area under terms of the 1949 armistice agreement."

De Gaulle Gets Decree Powers

By HARVEY HUDSON
PARIS (AP)—President de Gaulle Wednesday night got the decree powers he wants to act decisively against his opponents in France and Algeria. In response to an appeal by Premier Michel Debre, the Senate quickly approved a bill granting the government emergency powers by a vote of 220 to 39. The Chamber of Deputies already had approved the bill.

It becomes law as soon as De Gaulle signs it. Thus armed, de Gaulle was reported to be planning a drastic shakeup of civilian and military leaders in Algeria. Even before parliament acted, the government began moving against right wing extremists who are believed to have been the real force behind last week's rebellion by French settlers in Algeria.

The settlers' feared de Gaulle's plan for self-determination in France's big North African territory might eventually give the Moslem majority control and force them out.

But some French right wingers also oppose democracy. Some of the right wing leaders now sought by the police were active in the 1930s, when there was support here for fascism.

Debre's speech to the Senate, as in his address to the assembly the day before, viewed the French uprising in Algeria gravely.

"We almost saw a collapse of the state last week," he said. "The stability of institutions, the continuity of thought and political action are more necessary than ever."

Debre refused to accept any amendments to the bill. This means that cabinet decrees will become law without parliament having anything to say until later.

ALGIERS—Arms outstretched, bearded rebel leader Pierre LaGaillarde leaves his barricade to surrender to French troops here February 1st after the settlers' revolt collapsed. He is followed by men carrying flag. Radio Algiers said February 1st that LaGaillarde was in the custody of military authorities. It was reported that the French Cabinet would decide his fate.—UPI Photo.

Nova Scotia Hit By Worst Storm In Years

By DON HOYT
HALIFAX (CP)—An unexpected storm overwhelmed southern Nova Scotia Wednesday and went into the record books as the worst of the century for the Halifax metropolitan area.

By late afternoon, 26 inches had fallen on Halifax and Dartmouth in 18 hours. It was still falling and drifting before winds that gusted to more than 60 miles an hour.

Nova Scotia highways department crews and city snow plows fought a losing battle. The provincial road department said plowing would continue but there was no hope of opening roads in eight south coast and Annapolis Valley counties until the winds stopped blowing. "That could be tomorrow," a spokesman said.

A Trans-Canada Air Lines official said airports at nearby Shearwater and Greenwood and Yarmouth, N.S., would not be open to traffic for at least 24 hours from noon Wednesday. Most trains were delayed and some only made it through mountainous drifts behind snow plows.

ALERT KEY SERVICES
Police and fire departments here set up emergency procedures and 142 extra firemen were on duty. Radio-equipped plows kept trying to open arteries and were on the alert to move quickly to help emergency vehicles answer calls.

At least four radio stations in Nova Scotia experienced power difficulties. Emergency power was used by Halifax stations at times to maintain broadcasting facilities.

Many stores, offices and industrial plants were closed because staffs were unable to get through the wet snow, lashed with the sting of a whip by the wind. Schools remained closed, university students got a holiday and residents were urged to leave their cars home if they ventured out. Hotels said scores of people from suburban areas were making reservations to sleep out the storm.

Cars were a big problem. Those that stalled on main thoroughfares were towed away as soon as they could be reached. Even the city's electrically-operated trolleys were stopped.

NO AMBULANCE
A few accidents were reported. A woman was carried by interns about two miles on a stretcher to hospital after she was struck by a car.

City works commissioner George West summed up the situation at noon Wednesday when he said:

"It's a losing battle. As soon as we get a street clear it fills in again."

Ships nearing port have to off the harbour entrance to ride out the blizzard. Harbour ferries kept a transportation link open between Halifax and Dartmouth. Navy vessels ferried some dockyard employees to work.

Town engineer Walter Lacey of Dartmouth said the storm, which began late Tuesday night, matched one that hit the area Dec. 24, 1948. But this year's blow, said the weather office, knocked down all previous records for snowfall.

WORST SINCE 1894
The only thing close to Wednesday's snow occurred in 1894 when 24 inches fell in 24 hours.

Some damage was caused. The roof of a building housing a beverage firm collapsed in Lunenburg, N.S., damaging four cars. No one was hurt.

In Halifax, the downtown area was without power for almost an hour at noon. Many of those who walked to work found themselves in restaurants with no electricity to cook food.

Residents were urged to use their telephones only in an emergency. Some power and telephone lines collapsed beneath the snow.

The Atlantic storm curved in towards Nova Scotia Tuesday night with its centre about 100 miles south of the province and stayed there. Then Wednesday morning, it moved eastward like a scythe along the south coast.

French Prepare For Blockade

BIZERTE, Tunisia (Reuters)—French naval officers prepared Wednesday for a possible Tunisian blockade aimed at forcing them out of their big anti-French insurgent naval base here.

President Habib Bourguiba made a formal request to France Jan. 28 for evacuation of the base by Feb. 8. It is the last French base on Tunisian soil under an agreement between the countries which gave Tunisia independence in 1956. French bases in Tunisia and the evacuation of all of them future now are under way, except Bizerte.

Bourguiba last week told a huge crowd that "the battle for say more than that 'negotiations begin Feb. 8'—the sections, including those on and anniversary of the destruction of Bizerte, are still going on."

Members Discuss Govt. Legislation

By DAVE MCINTOSH
OTTAWA (CP)—A Commons statement Wednesday by Prime Minister Diefenbaker indicated Canada and the United States are not out of the woods yet in negotiating an agreement concerning custody and control of nuclear warheads.

Replying to Opposition Leader Pearson about a press conference statement in Washington by President Eisenhower, the prime minister read part of a Canadian Press dispatch from Washington.

It said there are reports the U.S. administration may propose changes in the American law allowing such allies as Canada, Britain and France a greater degree of custody and control of U.S. atomic weapons stockpiled in these countries.

Apart from re-introduction of this many-sided problem, Commons business was fairly routine Wednesday.

The government tabled further supplementary spending estimates of $31,960,511 for the current fiscal year which ends March 31. There was no discussion.

Finance Minister Fleming said imports of Japanese textiles into Canada are getting out of hand.

Health Minister Monteith said the level of strontium-90 in Canadian milk has decreased in the last year.

Formal votes were required to defeat two attempts by Opposition members to obtain copies of documents from the government.

No Grounds For Divorce

LONDON (Reuters)—A man who tries to stop his wife from snoring by turning her over or moving her head gently is not cruel, a divorce court ruled Wednesday.

The wife, brunette Pamela Douglas, 28, failed to obtain a divorce from 40-year-old Charles Douglas.

Judge Sir Seymour Karminski rejected her allegation that the husband had treated her roughly.

"I don't think he behaved other than as a reasonable husband would have done in those circumstances," the judge said.

"After all, the husband has got to get some sleep and probably go to work the next day."

The main business of the day was discussion of government legislation to extend increased government contributions to ward elimination of dangerous railway level crossings for another three years—to Jan. 1, 1964.

Lucien Cardin (L.—Richelieu-Vercheres) and Frank Howard (CCF—Skeena) suggested the legislation be made permanent. Discussion of the measure was still going on when the House adjourned for the day at 6 p.m.

No British Support For Segregation

CAPETOWN (Reuters)—Prime Minister Macmillan told the South African Parliament today that Britain could not support its policy of racial segregation.

Macmillan said to do so would be "false to our own deep convictions about the political destinies of free men."

He also warned the white legislators that the most striking impression he received on his 17,000-mile African tour—which ends Friday—is that "the wind of change is blowing through the continent."

"Whether we like it or not, this growth of national consciousness is a political fact. We must all accept it as a fact. Our national policies must take account of it."

By refusing to do so, he added, "we may imperil the precarious balance of East and West, on which the peace of the world depends."

Macmillan said he thought the great issues in the second half of the 20th century "is whether the uncommitted peoples of Asia and Africa will swing to the East or to the West."

"The struggle is joined and it is a struggle for the minds of men," he declared.

In reply to Macmillan's speech, nationalist Prime Minister Hendrik Verwoerd said that, speaking frankly, "we can say we differ from you."

He brought applause from the legislators when he said: "There must not only be justice to the black man in Africa but also to the white man."

"We see ourselves as part of the Western world—a true white state in southern Africa, with a possibility of granting a full future to the black man in our midst."

This call was issued Wednesday by Lt.-Col. J.J. Hands. He commands a bomb disposal regiment of the Royal Engineers. It handles unexploded wartime Luftwaffe bombs after they are located. He says there are plenty of bombs left—but few recruits.

Iraq May Be Next

By WILLIAM L. RYAN

NEW YORK (AP)—Reliable informants say the Middle East is in store for a new violent shock. They describe the current Arab-Israeli clash near the Syrian frontier as only a prelude.

The explosion can begin, the informants say, with a new upheaval in Iraq, where the tide of popular sentiment among the educated 15 per cent of the populace is reported turning against the revolutionary regime because of its deep involvement with the Communists.

If that should come—and the informants say it could happen almost any day—the entire Arab east could be involved. There is always a possibility that neighboring Jordan's young King Hussein, who considers himself the legitimate heir to the Iraqi throne, might send army units to support an uprising against the rule of Iraqi Premier Abdel Karim Kassam.

General turmoil in the area could provoke precautionary defensive measures by Israel. And President Gamal Abdel Nasser of the United Arab Republic of Syria and Egypt could hardly remain aloof, because the Iraqi regime has loudly challenged his anti-Communist posture in Cairo and his claim to Arab leadership.

Part 4
Chapter 2

By ADDISON BOWN

FIRST PLANE LANDING

In the previous chapter reference was made to the delivery of hydro power on Jan. 13, as the first major development locally in 1931. That event, while of great significance in the growth of the Wabana industry in later years did not attract the same public interest as the next event of importance that year—the landing of the first aeroplane on Bell Island.

On several occasions previously the moth plane of Nfld. Airways Limited, with Messrs. Fraser and Sullivan on board, had been seen circling over the island as if its occupants were making an examination of possible landing places. An aeroplane was still enough of a novelty to rush out of doors and gaze skyward whenever its engines were heard. The excitement can be imagined, therefore, on the afternoon of Jan. 22, when the plane swept in over the cliff from the east and made a landing on Neary's farm.

The weather that day was perfect and the ground was free of snow. Those who happened to be in the vicinity of the field reported that the plane came in for a perfect landing, touching lightly down on the frozen surface and taxiing along until it came to a stop in centre field.

Excitement on the island was intense as the news of the landing spread quickly. Men, women and children dropped everything and made their way, by car, wagon or on foot, to the scene. A steady stream of motor cars, horse-drawn vehicles and pedestrians poured over the road leading to Neary's farm.

Miners returning from work ran side by side with shop hands who had left their counters and office workers who had deserted their desks; and the schools in the area were deserted by teachers and pupils alike, ed by eagerly rushing to see the first aeroplane over to land on Bell Island.

For many it was their first sight of a plane at close quarters. A mail delivery had been made to the island during an ice blockade in the winter of 1922 but the plane did not attempt to land at that time.

The airmen had left Mount Pearl near St. John's at 3.20 p.m. and ten minutes later their plane alighted on the Dominion farm near the cliff on the north side of the island. This was the property of the mining company but was then held under lease by Thos. F. Neary. The plane brought calendars of Frost, Wood & Company which were distributed for the agent, Andrew Glendinning.

After a stay of 15 minutes the pilot climbed into his seat and the other airmen set the propeller spinning with a single whirl. Then he too took his place and the plane began to move from its position near the eastern boundary of the field to which it had been wheeled. Police officers warned back the crowd as the aircraft gathered speed and came swiftly westward for the take-off. Then without any apparent jolting although the ground was far from even, the plane began to rise. The wheels lifted and she took the air gracefully from mid-field, the sun sparkling from her polished wings and fuselage as she sped into the eye of the setting sun.

Turning southward, the moth plane crossed the island, flew over the Tickle toward St. Phillips and then turned east in the direction of Torbay, leaving the residents to wend their way homeward after an exciting and historic event. The plane landed at Mount Pearl 25 minutes after its takeoff from Neary's farm.

The rink reopened on New Year's day that year, and outdoor skating was enjoyed during the Christmas season on various ponds around the island such as 15 dam, Perry's brook, the Scotia dam, Lance Cove pond and the Bell pond. Some of the local mechanics, after the reduction in working time, began moving to Buchans in January, among them being John Kennedy, Eugene Kennedy and Geo. Hiscock.

Two marriages were recorded that month:—Wm. Stoyles of Harbour Grace on the 3rd; and Michael Stoyles to Florence Cahoon at Sault-Ste-Marie on Jan. 6. The following deaths took place:—At Avondale on the 17th, Mrs. Elizabeth Moore, 77, mother of Mrs. Elias Bash; Mary Fitzpatrick of the Hill, Lance Cove road, 21, on Jan. 26; and John Fitzpatrick, 44, of the same area on the 28th.

The East tramway was cleared of snow on Jan. 8 to permit the transportation from the pier of a new type of loading shovel for No. 6 mine. It was a Goodman traction shovel for use in the low seams where the high electric shovels used in No. 3 mine could not operate. The shovel went into operation on Feb. 5 and was loading ore at the rate of a ton every minute.

Members of the L.O.B.A. held a concert in the Orange Hall on Jan. 7 in which the following took part:—Capt. Hallet, Cmdr Robbins, Laura Wilcox, Moses Butt, Dorothy Rose. It was under the direction of the Worthy Mistress, Mrs. Albert Morgan.

Lt. Col. Bladin, of the Salvation Army, gave a most interesting lecture at the Citadel on the 12th when he told of his experience as a chaplain with the New Zealand forces during the Great War.

The Night School in St. Joseph's Hall resumed winter sessions on Jan. 19 with R. P. Conway and A. J. Grant in charge.

One of the island's landmarks, a link with its early history, disappeared that month when the old Scotia staff house, then known as Ley's hotel, was torn down. It was one of the first buildings erected by the pioneer company, Nova Scotia Steel & Coal, when mining operations began in 1894.

Khrushchev Seeks To Buy Time And Men With Easily Reversed Armed Forces Cut

By RAY CROMLEY
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

WASHINGTON—(NEA)—Hear these chilling words. They're the private thoughts of some key men in U. S. defense planning after reading Nikita Khrushchev's plan for cutting his armed forces by a third, from 3.6 million to 2.4 million men.

First, Khrushchev needs time and more men—for nasty surprise.

There is evidence here the Russians are on the verge of some important advances in powerful missiles and in maneuverable military space craft or space platforms. There is evidence, too, that these will take five to six years to put into operation.

This could put the Russians out in front, militarily—in the same way the atomic bomb kept the U.S. out in front after World War II.

So Khrushchev might be planning a little lull before a new storm five years hence when he might hold the trumps and really threaten.

For to make this potential military might mean something, Khrushchev must build his economy at a faster pace and wipe out some key weaknesses.

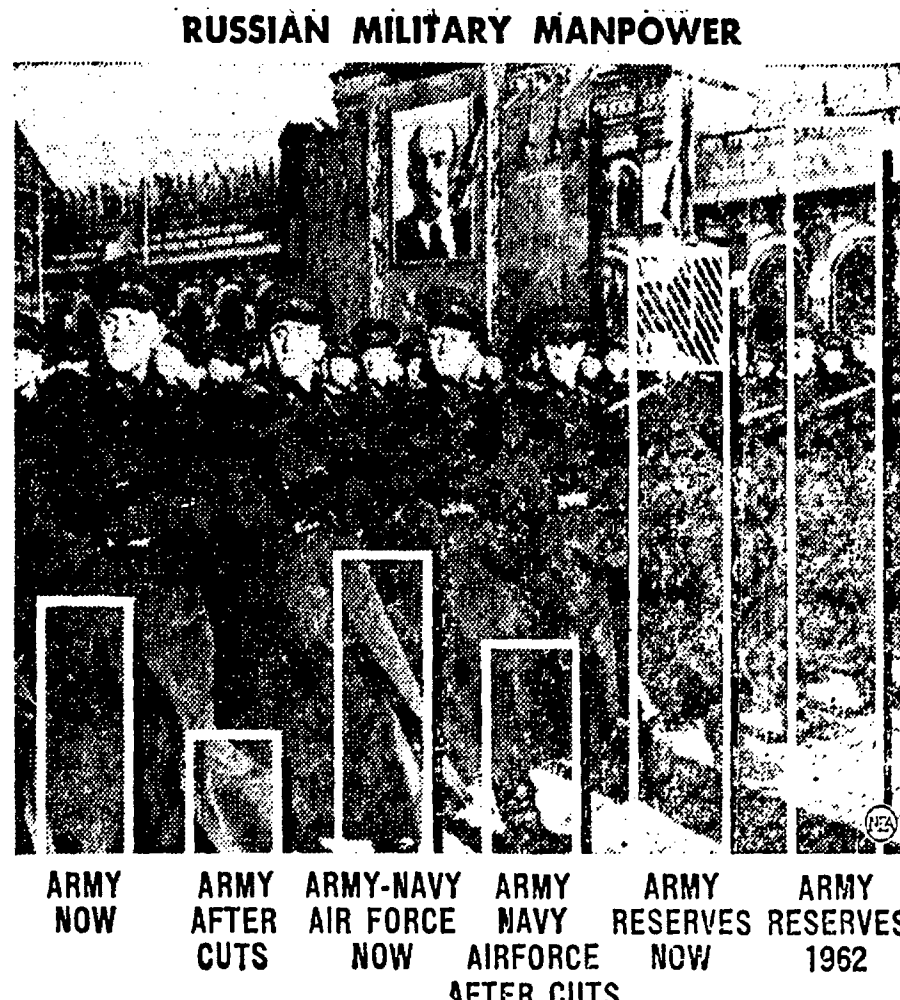

But Soviet Russia is sorely short of men for this economic buildup. Beginning with 1960, many of the children who would just now be growing into manhood, weren't born because their "fathers" were killed in World War II.

Russian losses from 1941 to 1945 were estimated at 10 million. Russia will feel this shortage of new young men intensely—especially for the next five years.

Khrushchev has already had to take many young people out of school to make up in part for this shortage. But he needs more.

Second, militarily, the cuts mean little or nothing. The Russians can mobilize 3.5 million well-trained reserves and have them in frontline divisions within 30 days. The reserve program is being stepped up. Within three years, Khrushchev will have nine million ready-for-action reserves. Many of the men that will be "released" will go into a new national guard.

Khrushchev is now betting on his armies down to the smallest units with new equipment and missiles. The 125 to 130 divisions he will have in 1962 will have far greater firepower than the 175 divisions he has today.

RUSSIAN MILITARY MANPOWER

worked out well. Note, too, that Khrushchev can change his mind at will. His cut from 3.6 million to 2.4 million can be reversed in less than two weeks if he gets his breakthroughs more quickly than he expects, or if he sees an opportunity for mischief—say in the Middle East.

Third, this could give Khrushchev what he wants—a partial world disarmament without inspection of Russia.

Premier Khrushchev outmaneuvered the U.S. some time ago on a cessation of atomic testing. He proposed a ban. The U.S. answered that America would consider no ban without foolproof method of inspection.

So Khrushchev went ahead with a unilateral ban on testing. This forced the U.S. into going along.

This Mr. K. got what he wanted—a ban on atomic testing with no system of inspection.

The U.S. has no way of knowing whether the Soviet Union is now conducting secret underground tests or no.

Khrushchev has also proposed disarmament. The U.S. said no unless there is foolproof method of inspection.

Now Khrushchev is going ahead unilaterally with reducing his armed forces. If the West—for reasons of public opinion—follows suit, Khrushchev will again have what he wants—no inspection.

No one will ever know whether the Russian really have cut their forces—or whether they reduced their men and kept them reduced—or whether they reduced built up their forces again in secret.

CONCEPTION BAY NEWS

'Sunday Miscellany'

SPANIARD'S BAY—We have just listened to "Sunday Miscellany," a weekly programme broadcast by the CBC.

This program, in our opinion, is one of the best on radio, although it may rate high in popularity in the same sense as a musical or a dramatic show. But, like everything else, its appeal to the masses is no criterion of its value.

We like to think of the programme as book of essays prepared and written by the best minds of our day and presented by them in the way that the creators of these essays wish.

Sunday's topic was, on the surface, of special appeal to only a small section of the population—those directly or indirectly concerned with the "Trinity Benefit Club." But to an even smaller group, perhaps, it was interesting and informative because it meant another addition to a store of knowledge of this old island of ours. For those who are inclined to think of Newfoundland's soil as barren, such reminders serve a useful purpose.

The scenic, historic tone of Trinity is fortunate in having a native son on today's scene to present so graphically its history and the sidelights of Newfoundland history in general.

To Rev. E. Hunt and to all the other capable people who appear on "Sunday Miscellany" we would like to say that we like what they are doing.

her passing was quite a shock to her relatives and friends. The funeral services were held on Wednesday afternoon, January 20th, Captain Thompson conducted the services at the home and graveside with interment in the Salvation Army Citadel.

Deceased is survived by one brother, Wesley Breen, of Marystown, as well as several other relatives and friends. To the bereaved deepest sympathy is extended.

Kiwanis News

HARBOUR GRACE—The regular weekly meeting of the Harbour Grace Kiwanis Club took place on Monday night at Pike's Hotel with president Len McNamara presiding.

Chairman of the evening was Kiwanian W. H. Stevenson. Visitors from the Carbonear Kiwanis Club were President Bob Nutbeam, treasurer George Hall, 1st vice president Dr. Gus Rowe, 2nd vice president Graham Moores and Dr. L. Wells.

General business included a report that the March of Dimes campaign had been successfully concluded. It was decided to postpone the holding of Ladies' Night until February 17th.

Chairman W. H. Stevenson then introduced the guest speaker, Dr. L. S. Wallace, who addressed the members on the subject of general health, this being in connection with National Health Week.

A vote of thanks was proposed to the speaker by Kiwanian Mike Stapleton and was accorded in a hearty manner. Fine master Ray Pelley moted out fines to the guilty parties after which the meeting adjourned.

Coming

CARBONEAR—"Carbon-car" L.O.L. No. 13 will be holding a soup supper on Thursday, February 16th, beginning at 6 p.m. and continuing on through the evening. All members and supporters of the organization are kindly asked to keep the date in mind and to attend.

Candlemas Day Visits Home Town

SPANIARD'S BAY—February 2nd was Candlemas Day, the one which carries with it among other things, prophetic jingles about the weather. There are several versions of the rhyme, but two that we call to mind are confusing. One says:

"If Candlemas Day is fair and fine,
Most of the winter is left behind."

The other says:

"If Candlemas Day is fine and fair,
The worst of the weather is to appear."

One, it seems, rules the other out, but the general impression is that a fine day on February 2 means that there are many storms in store before the robins appear. For our money we shall leave it to the professional weather forecasters, and even they don't always hit the mark.

There are customs associated with the day which are not wholly concerned with religion or with the weather. In some parts of Newfoundland, it is a day for parties. There's always a "scoff" to mark the day, or as one person put it "Christ-mas warmed over." It is a sort of mid-winter spree.

As a crild we heard this little jingle:

"February second is Candlemas Day."

HARBOUR GRACE—Visiting relatives in his hometown of Harbour Grace last week, was Mr. Charles Ash, now residing in Detroit, Mr. Ash left Harbour Grace when quite young to reside on the mainland where he has become a successful bricklayer.

Mr. Ash took advantage of the slack season to pay a brief visit to his home town and was accompanied by his wife. While here, both were guests of his sisters, Mrs. Allan Gillard and Mrs. Lemuel Taylor.

Many friends of former day were pleased to extend a welcome to Mr. and Mrs. Ash whose last visit here was fifteen years ago. They left on Tuesday morning for Detroit.

Put candles and candlesticks away
And eat supper by light of day.

This little rhyme had real meaning before the days of electricity and the six o'clock whistle.

But one certainty we can all appreciate, the daylight hours are two hours longer than they were at Christmas time, and with each passing day grows longer still. We are all living in hope that there are warmer, summer days ahead.

Personals

HARBOUR GRACE—Mr. and Mrs. Henley Nunn, St. John's, spent the weekend at their Harbour Grace residence on the Point of Beach.

Mr. L. McNamara was a visitor to St. John's on Monday.

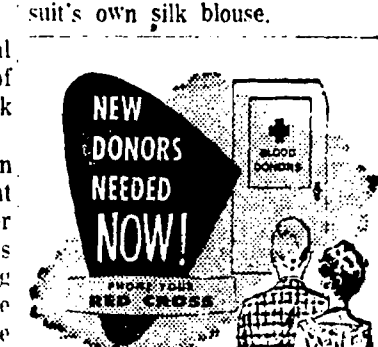

Mr. W. A. Oke paid a brief visit to Bell Island during this week.

The many friends of Miss Annire O'Keefe will regret to learn that she fell and broke her arm while visiting St. John's last week. She is now resting comfortably.

GRAND BANK

GRAND BANK, Jan. 27—A month of 1960 has almost gone into history! Another month of the winter season has also slipped by and its obvious that the days are getting longer and the sun rays are increasing in strength. Weather conditions during January have been quite mild which is welcomed by most of us, but for those who are in the woods obtaining supplies of firewood, the weather has been too mild to suit good hauling conditions.

During the past week all the employees at the Cottage Hospital here were required to take the Oath of Allegiance to the Queen. This is similar to what is being required of all Provincial Civil Servants following a recent order by the Justice Department. However, rumors were flying all over town for the reason for this procedure which is indicative of how some peoples imaginations work and how soon it can develop into a full fledged rumor.

Travellers over the Terrenceville highway during the week or so report the driving conditions to be good practically no snow anywhere. The recent mild weather has also melted much of the ice in ponds and streams, in many cases open water evident whilst pond ice is more than a foot thick in pond.

Since the trout season opened on January 15th, quite a number of local sportsmen have been out fishing through the ice. Some of the results have been quite good with Pike Pond the most favourite location of anglers. Weather conditions have been so mild that many of the trouters have succeeded in digging worms in the garden for their bait and, of course, have reaped the best catches.

Work on the new breakwater now nearing completion, it reported that the T. G. Gorman Co., Ltd., will conclude its operations at the quarry sometime next week. All it remains to complete the then will be the placing of the concrete slab on the pier at the end of the breakwater and it is understood that this work is to be completed to a local concern. The Gorman Company has been here on this particular project for a little over six months and the efficient and thorough manner in which Mr. Riley, the Superintendent, and his associates have done the work has raised comments of approval and compliment throughout the community. We feel that we express the sentiments of all residents of the Municipality, as well as the Town Council, in thanking these men for a job well done and also for their excellent conduct and behaviour whilst amongst us. We wish them well in their future endeavours and spheres of activity.

We note with interest in the December issue of "Trade News" an article on Spanish Pair Trawler operations. Much comment has been heard in recent years by our dragger crews of such type trawling on the Grand Banks, and often during the early Spring, close to the Southwest coast and in Bay St. George. However, what interests us most is the fact that approximately one third of the catch of these ships is thrown back into the sea (dead of course) as useless, or approximately ten thousand pounds daily per pair. And this is choice fish like halibut, haddock and flounder. This amounts roughly to three hundred thousand pounds of fish per month per pair of Spanish trawlers, and accordingly to the reports of our own fishermen, the number of Spanish ships operating in North Atlantic waters is high, then we can appreciate what a high figure such wasted fish can run into for a whole season's fishing voyage. There is no doubt at all that our once prolific and fabulous fishing gold mine off our coasts is fast petering out. It is inevitable under such pressure and extensive unceasing high geared fishing. But, it is also tragic that such wanton destruction of our fish stocks are being so indiscriminately destroyed while our own, and other fisheries officials, prepared to hide their heads in the proverbial sands as it occurs.

A well-known Nova Scotian deepsea fishing Captain, and high line operator, Captain Edwin Cleveland, years ago warned of the early depletion of the Grand Banks fish supply and reserves unless remedial action was taken. His warnings fell upon deaf ears, apparently! A well known local dragger Captain, who has been dragger fishing for the past fourteen years, and who spent thirty years previously at dory fishing, expressed the opinion to the writer a few days ago that in his opinion many of the Canadian trawlers will have to leave the Grand Banks this summer for further northern grounds to get remunerative catches for their crews and owners. We believe that the time has indeed come for some definite action by all concerned for conservation methods to save the Grand Bank fishery.

The Eastern Canada Savings And Loan Company Moving To Larger Quarters

CLAUDE E. DAWE

Mr. C. A. B. Bullock, President, and Mr. Frank A. Milne, General Manager of The Eastern Canada Savings And Loan Company, disclosed at Halifax on January 7, 1960, that the St. John's, Newfoundland Branch will be moving into the building at 170 Water St. as soon as possible after it is vacated by Simpson Sears Ltd.

The response of the people of Newfoundland to the opening of Savings Accounts, the issuing of Debentures and Deposit Receipts, as well as those who built new homes or purchased and repaired existing homes, has been such that it became necessary to seek larger and better offices.

Mr. Claude E. Dawe, in managing the affairs of the Branch, is largely responsible for the success since its opening and will continue as Manager.

Messrs. Cummings and Campbell, Architects, are now working on plans for the new office which will be modern in every respect including adequate vault space.

Card Party

A mammoth card party, starting at 8.30, will be held in St. Patrick's Hall auditorium tonight. Three main prizes are offered, also twenty lucky numbers. Patrons are asked to bring their own baskets and cards as tea will be served, so come one, come all, and swell the ranks at St. Pat's tonight. It is for a good cause.

St. John Ambulance On The Highways

Statistics show quite clearly that more die as a direct result of accidents, than all the infectious diseases combined. In the current campaign for funds to carry on the great work of St. John Ambulance, one of the good reasons why the campaign should be supported, and all reasons are good, is the proposed operation of having a system of First Aid Posts scattered at intervals along the many highways in the Island. The extent and the number largely depends on YOU the public who will be making contributions this week.

First Aid posts have been in operation at most all the large public gatherings, such as the Royal Visit, the St. John's Regatta, in Bowring Park and at all sporting events, but, have you ever given a thought to that accident which has happened somewhere on the highway and a long way from any assistance and you with little or nothing in the way of bandages, etc., in your car, much less anyone who knows just what to do.

False Alarm

City firemen had several calls yesterday. Between 2 p.m. and 3 p.m. trucks responded to Morris Avenue and Cathedral St. where oil burners were giving trouble. Shortly before 4 p.m. a call received from the intersection of Lincolnton St. and Freshwater Rd. turned out to be a false alarm. A call from Gower St. regarding a smell of smoke in a house was the last call for the day.

POLICE BLOTTER

Seven arrests were made by city police late yesterday and over night, three for drunk and disorderly and four for drunkenness.

Token Strike

A token strike on the part of members of the Retail Clerks Union has been hinted at.

The union is definitely not in favour of the Monday holiday, and want Saturday instead, according to a union spokesman.

To show their dislike of the holiday, some clerks are rumored to be planning a token strike on a Saturday.

Many of the union members feel that the Monday holiday was pushed through by a couple of the city's larger firms.

Some employers are also not in favour of the new holiday, and have phoned the international representative of the Clerks Union to this effect.

Phoning Householders

Telephone soliciting will begin soon, as a new feature of the Winter Works Campaign. Two telephones will be installed in the office of the Unemployment Insurance Commission. Householders will be called and asked if they have any work needed to be done and attempt to provide the householders with workmen for the job.

So far, no definite date has been set as to when this part of the campaign will begin.

No Visas Needed To Enter Spain

Herbert K. Wyatt, acting vice consul for Spain in the absence of the vice consul, Senor Mariano L. Coste Y. Rodriguez, has received the following communication from the Consulate of Spain, 4139 Sherbrooke Street West, Montreal, P.Q.

"We are pleased to inform you that, effective January 25th, 1960, Canadian citizens do not require visas to enter Spain. The valid passport is the only document to be presented at the Spanish border."

Tourist traffic to European countries has increased enormously during the past few years and Spain has shared in this great influx of visitors. Modern hotels are to be found in all sections of sunny Spain and even though native foods predominate many hotels cater to the western palate. Spanish authorities anticipate that several million people will visit this country of great historical and scenic beauty and culture during 1960.

APEC Studies Business Prospects For Goose Bay

APEC in cooperation with Maritime Central Airways last week completed a survey of business prospects for 1960 in Goose Bay, Labrador. It was announced by APEC today.

C. T. FitzRandolph, APEC's products promotion officer, who returned from Goose Bay during the weekend, said a detailed report on his trip is now being compiled and will be available to suppliers from the Atlantic Provinces on request.

In addition to the regular sea and air freight services now supplied to Goose Bay and the North East Arctic, it was indicated by APEC that information has been received from the Department of Transport that, if required, three LCT's based in Halifax could be used for transporting bulk oil to Dew Line stations on Baffin Island and Foxe Basin. The LCT's would be used for this purpose provided the successful tenderer for the supply of oil to these stations is from the Atlantic region.

It is also understood the Department of Transport intends to load one of its icebreakers at Halifax which will call at five Arctic ports this summer. The ice breaker will carry general supplies destined for government installations at Cape Harrison, Resolution Island, Cape Hopes Advance, Payne Bay and Nottingham Island.

Regular shipping services now provided to Labrador and the Arctic are from Halifax to Goose Bay with calls to Charlottetown if tonnage warrants it (Newfoundland-Canada's SS Fauvette) and from St. John's to Goose Bay with ports of call en route (Canadian National's SS Burgeo). MCA maintains a regular run to Goose Bay and to Frobisher and Sagkeg if tonnage warrants it.

World Day Of Prayer

The local committee of the Women's Inter-Church Council of Canada met at the home of Mrs. Boyd Baird on January 15th, to arrange for the World Day of Prayer Service to be held on March 4. Present were representatives from the Anglican churches, the Salvation Army, the five United churches, Presbyterian and Baptist churches and three from Pepperrell AFB.

Plans were made for the annual Day of Prayer under the direction of the Presbyterian Church this year, Mrs. Boyd Baird being the key woman. At the close of the meeting a social hour was spent and the fellowship enjoyed by all.

New Training Plan For CNR AT CITY HALL Maintenance, Way Employees

"Every man an expert in his line" is the goal of a new training program being instituted by Canadian National Railways for maintenance of way employees in the Atlantic region.

Initial courses are for roadmasters, assistant roadmasters and section foremen, but the program is destined so that it may be extended to other maintenance of way groups. R. P. Puddister, regional chief engineer of the Railway described in Moncton, the program as a tremendous boon to maintenance of way employees in the Atlantic region.

"I sincerely hope the training will open new avenues for advancement of those employees who complete the training," he said.

Roadmasters in the region will attend a course in Moncton, at which they will receive training in supervision and numerous other aspects of their duties. In addition they will be briefed on the training to be given to section foremen, in order to standardize methods of doing track work.

The roadmasters training will feature courses of job instruction, accident prevention, budget work, cost control, work study, welding, rule instruction and effective letter writing.

Assistant roadmasters, will receive their training at Moncton, Halifax, Campbellton, Edmundston and St. John's. Scheduled to start in late April, the training course for section foremen will be held at Franklin Yard, Moncton. Instruction will be given on 30 phases of track work ranging from track lining to road bed maintenance.

H. J. Hennessey, Charlottetown, vice chairman of the Brotherhood of Maintenance of Way, says the plan is a good one which will benefit both men and management.

"I look forward to the training program being extended to workers in other classifications of road maintenance employees," he said.

All supervisory training will be conducted by B. E. Lockhart, Regional Instruction of Supervisory Training. The entire program for the maintenance of way department is under the direction of G. N. Langley, regional training supervisor.

Found Guilty Of Stealing Own Truck

A young resident of Tor's Cove was convicted in Magistrate's Court yesterday afternoon after pleading guilty to a charge of stealing his own truck from Baird Motor's Parking Lot.

The truck had been given to Baird Motors for repairs that amounted to $157 but a discount of seven dollars was allowed by the firm. The young man wanted to pay $50 and the remainder later, but the firm wanted to have at least half of the amount due them.

When they refused to surrender the truck to its owner on his terms he went to the parking lot and took it.

Magistrate O'Neill gave the man a two year suspended sentence and he was ordered to post a bond of $300.

DELAY FINES BACK IN COURT

Persons convicted and fined by the courts must pay their fines within a reasonable length of time. Three persons who were delaying payments were hauled before the Magistrate's Court yesterday afternoon to give their reasons for not paying costs in judgments handed down against them last year.

One person agreed to pay ten dollars a month and the other two were given a month in which to do something about paying their fines or else they would be sentenced to prison terms.

CONTRARY TO ZONING

Since no application had been received from Avalon Oil Company for the operation of an office at 37 Campbell Avenue was once a small store, the city council has asked that the City Solicitor to study the matter for legal action.

The shop was formerly operated as a shoe store and was a tolerance under the Zoning Regulations. The change of occupancy from one non-conforming use to another non-conforming use is not permitted under the Zoning Regulations except with the expressed permission of Council.

Avalon Oil Company claims that it has the permission of the landowners opposite to park their trucks overnight. No oil of any class is stored on the premises, and the office is for receiving orders only.

Whom Should We Do To Death

Mankind is advancing slowly towards the civilized ways to which it pretends. In Canada, as society has already done in some countries and has most recently made the subject of advanced experiment in Great Britain, it has become concerned with capital punishment. That Canadian consciences are troubled by this question is a good thing. It will be a better thing if constructive action should follow.

Many incidents have recently occurred to focus public attention on some of the more revolting aspects of capital punishment. Two events in Britain sharpened the public conscience. One was the hanging of a young man, barely over the legal age for execution, because he was an accessory to murder. Another was the hanging of a highly emotional and neurotic woman for a crime of passion.

In Canada we have lately had the case of a boy who had to lie under sentence of death for several weeks until the cabinet could get around to commuting his sentence and there was another case of a man who suffered all the agonies of a capital sentence until his sentence was commuted on the virtual eve of his execution. And in the United States, there is a man who committed a terrible crime but who was permitted by the law to gain many years of delay in his execution until his last appeal, subject to the exercise of gubernatorial clemency may render futile his efforts to evade the gas chamber. All these happenings are representative of the kind of mental torture to which persons convicted of capital crimes may be subjected.

A Royal Commission in Canada considered this question of capital punishment and came up with nothing better than a proposal on the improvement of the method by which a criminal may be deprived of his life. But the whole thought of doing a man to death is horrible. The ceremonial is hideous—the weeks of empty, fearful waiting, the formality of the last meal, the procession to the execution chamber, the binding of limbs and the covering of the head and the slipping on and tightening of the noose, and then the final release of the trap, are all part of a performance that discredits the civilization of which we boast.

All this and more will be discussed when the debate on a private member's Bill takes place in the House of Commons in Ottawa. The discussion promises nothing more than an academic ventilation of the question. No assurance is provided of remedial legislation to give effect to majority opinion in an open and non-party vote. But the very fact that time will be allotted for this debate is proof of Canada's troubled conscience.

It may be that the majority will prefer some such compromise as has been legislated in Great Britain. A distinction was made between capital and non-capital murder. Capital murder is the term applied to murder during a theft, resistance to arrest, the killing of police or prison officers, and murder committed by shooting or bombing. And repulsive as the practice of legal execution is, it may be argued that for certain types of crime the threat of capital punishment may serve as a deterrent. Even in a question of this kind, the advocates of the abolition of capital punishment may feel that half-a-loaf is better than none and that the limitation of the offences for which execution will be mandatory is an important stepping-stone towards the development of a more humane society.

It will be interesting to see how well the House of Commons will meet the test with which the debate on abolition will confront it on an individual and collective basis.

End Of The Debate

The principal purpose of the debate on the Address In Reply is to permit a general review of public policy on a far-ranging basis. A study of press reports and Hansard suggests that it was a disappointing performance.

Where debate was not rambling and discursive, it was often querulous and acrimonious. Little of the criticism was as well directed and constructive as it could have been and many of the answers were waspish or evasive.

There was no clear-cut statement on any subject of immediate national importance and most of the time both sides seemed either to be fighting the last election or making ready for the next one.

The result is that confusion still reigns in the public mind on such vital questions as defence, the imbalance in foreign trade, the monetary situation and a number of other matters on which the people all over the country are waiting anxiously for information and direction.

It may well be thought that the leaders on both sides of the House might have made a greater effort to isolate the major problems of the day and make them the subject of reasoned argument and debate.

Faith In A Failure

It is astonishing to learn that the Minister of Defence, Mr. Pearkes, has reaffirmed the faith of the government in Ottawa in the Bomarc missile in spite of the succession of failures in the tests that have so far been made.

A very large sum of money has been committed to the construction of two bases in Canada to be supplied with these missiles. It is surely to be expected that this matter will now receive a good second thought.

FEARSOME SCREAM

St. Thomas Times-Journal

A man entered a store in Yonge Street the other evening and hiding something under his coat, said to the woman behind the counter, "This is a stickup."

The woman let loose a scream and the man fled.

There is nothing that scares a man more than a scream—especially a woman's scream. He may be a tough hombre, but a scream from a little bit of a woman gives him the jitters and he buzzes off for fear of the consequences.

BEDS TOO SOFT

Owen Sound Sun-Times

Among the many "new expressions" is "feather bedding." We are not sure whether it comes from the idea that a "feather bed" is a place of great comfort.

If so the person who first thought it up probably never slept in a feather bed. For, soft they may be, but to all but the very young they eventually prove uncomfortable because of their extreme softness.

And that, of course, could also apply to those who are feather bedded in the modern sense of the word.

IN THE NEWS By Wayfarer

THE LAND OF CAIN

In his monumental study of Labrador, published fifty years ago, the late W. G. Gosling recorded the thinking of that time when he said: "Although Labrador abounds in iron, no workable deposits have yet been made known. The Grand Falls of the Hamilton River are one of the wonders of North America and contain a stupendous water-power, which perhaps some day may be used for the generation of electricity. But Labrador has little promise for the white settler, and it is to the Eskimos that one would be inclined to look for a population . . ." But Mr. Gosling cannot be blamed for lacking the gift of prophecy. He could not envision the contribution of the aeroplane to exploration and development of hitherto inaccessible lands and the numerous means that scientific and mechanically-minded man would evolve to make easier the exploitation of life in then inhospitable and barren wilds.

This train of thought is stimulated by the news that the first major development of hydro-electric power is about to take place in the region of the Grand Falls. Within the past ten years amazing things have been happening in Labrador. There was first the amazing feat of engineering and construction that created the Iron Ore Company's great mines on the Quebec-Labrador boundary and saw the construction of 300 miles of railway from Knob Lake to the St. Lawrence at Seven Islands. Now there are the two great mining developments in progress in Western Labrador around the shores of Lake Wabush which will, when completed, bring the sum invested in Labrador iron to very close to a thousand million dollars. And then there is Brinco, now preparing at the Twin Falls, a few miles south of the great Hamilton or Grand Falls, to spend $25 million to produce 120,000 horsepower for the use of the Wabush and Carol Lake mining interests. Yet in 1931, four years after Newfoundland had won the Labrador Boundary Case, it was said in the Canadian House of Commons that the question of buying Labrador from Newfoundland was engaging the attention of the government and in the following October a delegation was actually appointed by the Newfoundland government to go to Ottawa to open official discussions. It is rather interesting to learn from a document of the time that with the setting in of the depression, the Canadian government decided that no good purpose would be served by considering the proposal until there was a general improvement in world conditions. At that time, there was a possibility that Newfoundland, then in parlous financial condition, would have sold Labrador for as little as $25 million.

When we were called upon to give evidence before the Amulree Commission in 1933, we suggested that the development of Labrador should be undertaken by means of a chartered company. Lord Amulree noted in his report that a similar suggestion had come from more than one quarter. At any rate, so far as power development and mineral exploration in the central and eastern section are concerned, Brinco is responsible and this corporation was built on the model of a chartered company. When we talked a year or so ago in London with Mr. Edmund de Rothschild, he warned that in a venture of this kind patience was a virtue. But this initial development has come much faster than had been expected and it is certain to be the means of expediting larger operations based on the potential of the Hamilton Falls.

It is difficult today to realize how remote such contingencies were about thirty years ago. We have just been looking through a little book called The Land God Gave Cain which recounts the adventures of three young Englishmen in 1928 and 1929 in Labrador. Before them, a more handful of venturesome and intrepid explorers had made their way to the Grand Falls. Scott, the author of this book, relates in some detail the journey along the Unknown River and describes the appearance of the Twin Falls at which the new development will take place. That was not more than thirty years ago and the journey to the Falls was one that called for immense endurance and imposed great hardships. It is hard to realize that so much has happened since to make the Falls accessible and to allow the start of a very important development that may have far more important consequences.

To The Editor

CITIZENS FEDERAL SPENDING
Editor Daily News,

Dear Sir,—I wonder if the representatives of the Federal Government ever stop to think before they jump. In the case of the new Bell Island ferry and the dock, they jumped first and they will think after. The new dock that is already built, and the new boat that is in the making; with a great cost of the taxpayers' money is another step in the wrong direction; for according to the writing on the wall, for the future of the Iron Isle the Kippawo could have done the trick.

I am not criticizing the people of Bell Island in any way, in getting the new boat and the new dock. I would like to see them with a gold dock and a gold ferry boat; that's the way I feel about the people of Bell Island. They are one of the finest of Newfoundland and one entitled to a better treatment than they are getting. The poor miners that were laid off in number six close down could use this money, that is throwing to the wind by the Federal authorities, wasted money; new boats and new docks that they can expect no returns from.

When will they ever start to spend the money in the right place, where it will do the most good? Our harbours on the east coast could use some of this money for breakwaters and docks. What I mean by this is to make it safe in good fishing ports like Bailline, Flatrock, Pouch Cove, Torbay and a little touching up on the breakwater at Portugal Cove. This would be a step in the right direction with good returns.

The future of Bell Island hangs in the balance, it stands surrounded by the great iron ore deposits of Labrador; where there are big companies throwing in millions of dollars to put these new iron ore mines in operation. These companies really know what they are doing, confident of getting big returns, a better grade of ore, easier to mine; less expensive to operate. They can get three tons of ore down there for the cost of one on Bell Island.

My prediction: within the next two years Bell Island will be a ghost mining town. Maybe then they will turn the new boat over to the tuna fishery, also the new dock. This is a good outlook and a fast growing business, they caught two tuna fish last summer according to reports. I do hope my predictions will be wrong for the interest of Bell Islanders. I do hope a brighter future in the days that lie ahead.

I think you,

JACK DODD.

MAIL BOX IN SNOW BANK

Editor Daily News,

Dear Sir,—As a resident of Portugal Cove Road I would like to know from those responsible why the letter box on the corner of Elizabeth Avenue and Portugal Cove Road is surrounded by a bank of snow put there by a bulldozer. In order to get mail in this box one has to take a chance on slipping and injuring themselves. I use this box several times a week, therefore I would appreciate having this bank of

UNREASONABLE SPEED

Calgary Herald

A district court judge has ruled in Edmonton that a motorist clocked at 75 miles an hour inside the city limits was not driving at an unreasonable speed. This is shocking. The attorney-general's department should either appeal this decision to a higher court, or seek an amendment to the act under which the charge was originally laid setting out clearly a speed limit.

HARDSHIP FOR CHINESE

Victoria Times

The record of Chinese interference in other countries leads to disturbance note to the latest exchange between Peking and Jakarta. The Communist Chinese Government has protested the treatment of Chinese living in Indonesia and it may well have a case. Under an Indonesian law prohibiting aliens from trading in rural areas, many Chinese residents have been forced to abandon their homes and businesses.

BETTER SARDINE CANS

Brockville Recorder and Times

Someone long ago said that the way to progress was to create a better mousetrap. There are many things this old world needs—including mouse-traps—and among them is an easier-to-open sardine can. Some enterprising manufacturers fit their cans with little keys which are supposed to peel back the lids. Some do, some don't.

STORAGE TREATMENT

London Free Press

What F. L. Allen, chairman of the Pulp and Paper Research Institute of Canada, calls "a dividend to the people of Canada"—a new method of reducing sewage to harmless ash—has been made available to all levels of government in Canada, without payment, by the institute.

The method, successfully used in the Montreal suburb of Beaconsfield, is said to be able to reduce a day's sewage from a community of 12,000 people to a few bags of harmless ash.

NATURAL GAS EXPORT

Fort William Times-Journal

It is to be hoped that the National Energy Board will give its most earnest attention to the suggestion that at least 18 per cent. of the daily flow of gas out of Alberta shall be reserved for domestic use. Were the Board to insist on that, we might escape the consequences of American competition for the gas.

Surely the government agency should be able to limit the amount of export to the degree which would make it necessary for Trans-Canada Pipe Lines to hustle for new business in Eastern Canada.

KEE'S ECONOMIC REPORT HAS VARIOUS INTERPRETATIONS

By PETER EDSON

NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON—(NEA)—The Joint Senate-House Economic Committee under Chairman Paul H. Douglas (D-Ill.) should have a lot of fun when it begins this week's hearings on President Eisenhower's new economic report to Congress.

It is prepared, of course, by the Council of Economic Advisers, under Dr. Raymond J. Saulnier of Columbia University. Its general tone is that things are pretty good and going to stay that way all year, as all the trends are up.

But the report seems to be a number of different things to different people. It depends a good bit on which page you read, which paragraphs you mark and which sentences you underscore. And it hedges, to play safe.

To some observers, the important thing in the report is that the President is rallying the nation to a new battle against inflation.

But that's not emphasized nearly as much as it was last year and before.

The new emphasis is on the need to educate the public on productivity and price relationships—not inflation.

To other reviewers, the important thing in the report is that it holds out hope for tax cuts at some unspecified time in the future. But that's pretty vague.

Readers have to hunt pretty hard to find anything very new in the chapter on "A Legislative Program for 1960". Mostly, it is a restatement of proposals which the President has been making to Congress for the last several years, and which Congress has not been having any of.

This is where the Douglas Committee should have its fun, in an election year, as Democrats attack the President's economic policies and Republicans rise to defend them.

Expert guidance through the report does point up one change in directions for administration economic policy.

Reduction of the national debt seems to have been substituted for tax reduction as the best means to stimulate economic growth.

A year ago, when the country was just coming out of the 1958 recession, the economic report said that, "The growth of the national economy was significantly aided by the 1954 tax changes." They cut taxes seven billion dollars.

Last year's report went on to say that, "If the economy grows at the expected rate . . . a significant additional step in tax reduction can be taken in the foreseeable future."

Nobody defines what the foreseeable future is. But certainly there is no direct recommendation for tax cuts next year.

There is a vague hint that business should have the main benefits of any future tax cuts, but that's all.

On the other hand, and to the contrary, the new report emphasizes that the Congress this year is being asked to extend the present tax rates on corporate income and excise taxes on alcohol, tobacco, automobiles and parts, transportation and phone service. These taxes will expire this year unless renewed by Congress.

So, instead of using the hoped-for 4.2 billion-dollar surplus of government revenues over government expenses as a margin to reduce taxes in 1961, the administration wants this money used for debt reduction.

The theory seems to be that it is debt reduction, not tax reduction, which will "promote steady and vigorous economic growth—restrain inflationary pressures . . . facilitate non-inflationary management of public debt."

Only after a pattern of debt reduction has been established over a period of years should there be talk of tax reduction, according to the new economic policy.

SERVING GOD IN TRUTH

The Bible in one place referring to Christian ministers calls them, "ministers of Christ and stewards of the mysteries of God." The term minister is easily understood. The word minister comes from the Latin word "minor" which means "less." The minister is the person who makes himself of no consequence that he may be of service to others.

But the term "stewards of the mysteries of God" is not so readily understood. A steward is a person who holds and guards something which belongs to another. Christian ministers are "stewards of the mysteries of God." What are these mysteries? There is the mystery of sin, of salvation, the mystery of marriage (for it is a mystery), the mystery of death, the mystery of the future life. All these things a true minister of God must try to understand himself and interpret to others. These mysteries become a sacred repository and the minister is the steward of these mysteries. It is his duty not only to advise people as to how they may lead the good life; he is also under obligation to try to explain to them things which he only partly understands himself (mysteries of God) but which he must constantly investigate, reflect upon, try to understand, and explain to others.

A true minister is one who serves his fellow men and tries to explain to them "the mysteries of God." A minister and a steward.

LONG SHADOW OF 1958

By BRUCE BLOSSAT

In the 1960 congressional races, the Republicans have no choice but to focus their main energies on a bid to capture the House of Representatives. Numbers and geography combine to bar their way to control of the Senate until at least 1962.

As a matter of fact, this situation was determined by the election of 1958, when the Democrats scored a heavy sweep and moved so far ahead as to be, for the time, out of reach. They now hold 65 of the 100 Senate seats.

This year 12 Republican seats and 22 Democratic are at stake. All but one will be decided in November. That one, occupied for many years by the late Sen. William Langer, North Dakota Republican, will be settled in a special election June 28.

If it be assumed for the moment that the GOP can hang onto this and the 11 other berths they have on the block, then they would need another 16 to give them 51 and a bare Senate majority.

But to take 16 of the 22 Democratic seats is for all practical purposes impossible. Ten are in the impregnable South. On top of that, Senator Clinton Anderson of New Mexico, Senator Robert Kerr of Oklahoma and Senator E. L. Bartlett of Alaska are considered thoroughly secure.

That leaves just nine Democratic seats as the prize. If Republicans won them all and held everything they have, Democrats still would hold a 56-44 edge in the new Congress in 1961.

The GOP can have no easy assurance of winning all nine, as a steppingstone to regaining control of the Senate in 1962. For among that list are such stalwart incumbents as Senators Hubert Humphrey of Minnesota, Paul Douglas of Illinois, James Murray of Montana and John F. Rea of Delaware.

Furthermore, probably at least half of the dozen GOP seats up this year are vulnerable to Democratic assault. The Democrats themselves think perhaps 10 could be had if the 1960 election ran strongly their way.

Yet unless the Republicans do extremely well in the 1960 Senate contests, their hopes in 1962 will grow fainter. Then only 19 Democratic seats will be up, and at the most 12 (probably less) could be seized by the GOP.

All ranks are reminded of the Battalion Parade to be held in the Armoury TONIGHT, Thursday, at 7.45 p.m., when the usual Battalion exercises will be gone through, also, the monthly inspection will be held.

OLD COMRADES

The Old Comrades of the Brigade have finished yet another successful year, and on January 20, 1960, in their Clubrooms they held their annual meeting for 1960. This meeting was presided over by Mr. Eric G. Pomeroy, the very energetic President of the Old Comrades and the usual number of interested ex-members of the Brigade in attendance. Reports of Secretary Clarence Dominy and Treasurer Fred Peckford were presented in their usual good form and showed that the Association had had a very active year.

The election of officers for 1960 took place with Past President Aubrey Wight conducting the election as follows:—

President—Eric G. Pomeroy (11th year).
Vice President—Roy Feaver (elected).

Secretary—Clarence W. Dominy (4th year).

Treasurer—Fred Peckford (9th year).

Committee—Harry Hawkins, Graham Martin, Gordon Butler and Thomas Dewling.

Auditors—Arthur S. Thomas (Life Member), Joe Lane, George Broomfield and Leonard Blundon.

Of more than general interest is the re-election of President Eric G. Pomeroy for the 11th successive year, and this is certainly a fine tribute to the great leadership which he has displayed during the years that he has been in the Presidency. A staunch supporter of the Old Comrades and the Brigade as well, Eric is tireless in his energies for these organizations and his regime, thus far, has been blessed with success all the way, and augurs to continue so whilst he is there. For 9 of these years Fred Peckford has handled the purse strings of the Old Comrades with honour to himself and pride to the Old Comrades, and he also deserves the best commendation that can be bestowed on such an official. Good officials, interested in their work are very often hard to find, but in these two the Old Comrades have real jewels.

Connected in an executive capacity we find Clarence Dominy, who has shared the Presidency for the past three years and is now on his 4th. Clarence is a very active secretary and well received by the other Comrades. Roy Feaver rounds out the other executive officer and makes his appearance for the first year. Congratulations on your election and the best of luck for another successful year.

MARK MORGAN
On last Battalion Parade, our very popular caretaker, was honoured when he was made a presentation on behalf of Avalon Battalion on the occasion of the Golden Jubilee of his marriage, he and his good wife having been married some 50 years. Mark was brought out before the entire battalion during the evening and the presentation took the form of a cheque of $50.00, one dollar for each year, accompanied by three hearty cheers and the best wishes of all ranks for continued health and happiness.

U. S. Budget Has Ironic Aspects

By DAVID ROWNTREE
Canadian Press Staff Writer
Budgets are educated guesses at best but the 1960 - 61 U.S. budget has more "ifs" guesses than most.

For the financial year beginning July 1, President Eisenhower estimates revenues will total $84,000,000,000 and expenditures $79,800,000,000. This would leave a surplus of $4,200,000,000. But achieving that surplus depends on many "ifs."

There are some ironic aspects, too. When Eisenhower came to the White House in 1953, he did so with a pledge to reduce government spending, but Russian economic and military expansion worked against him.

Besides reducing the government's role in the economy, the president said it must live with time he retires after the November election, the Eisenhower administration will have spent about $15,000,000,000 more than it took in during its eight-year term of office. It could well be a billion or two more.

There are few strong supporters of Eisenhower's economic policies. Friends of the government grumble that nothing has been done to reform the tax structure while government spending goes up and up; critics complain that the administration isn't spending enough to meet the challenge of the Soviet Union.

Claims St. Mary's District Neglected

The following is a press release received by the NEWS Tuesday night from Thomas A. McGrath, P.C. Candidate for the District of St. Mary's in the last election:

In a television appearance Tuesday night, Dr. James McGrath, Minister of Health and Member of the House of Assembly for the District of St. Mary's, expressed his surprise that the Federal Government has taken no action in extending telephone communication to St. Mary's Bay. I would like to point out:

1. The matter is the responsibility of the CNT and not the Federal Government.
2. The one remaining stumbling block to the extension of the service is the failure of the Provincial Government to take action on its oft promised electrification programme for the District. The normal procedure in extending telephone lines is to utilize the poles erected for the transmission of electrical service and hence the CNT, in this instance, is stymied by the inactivity of the Provincial Government.

It is interesting to note that the surveys for the electrification have finally been completed. Many people were of the opinion that these surveys were completed before the poles were delivered for the project two weeks before the Provincial Election last August.

Dr. McGrath also referred to the lack of industry in his District. Newfoundlanders generally must have been dumbfounded to hear a cabinet minister confess his government's complete neglect of this particular area. Of all the millions spent by the Smallwood Government on industrial and fisheries development programme not one cent found its way into St. Mary's Bay.

ONE WAY STREET

A letter from Canada Packers Limited asked the Council to look into the parking regulations now in existence on Bond Street. They suggested that there be one way traffic on Bond Street with parking on the South Side. If this isn't possible then the no parking hours from eight to nine and one to two might be changed instead. "In this way," the letter stated, "the school children will be protected but at the same time the general public will be allowed to park in a zone where in our opinion parking should be made available."

These suggestions have been referred to the Traffic Commission for study and a report to be sent back to the Council.

Soviet Rocket Hits Target

By ROBERT ELPHICK

MOSCOW (Reuters)—Russia announced Monday it test-fired a second powerful new rocket so successfully Sunday that its current series of mid-Pacific tests have been wound up halfway through the scheduled period.

Observers here said it was likely that after the apparently successful test program, a spectacular new Soviet space attempt may be made any day now.

The government, announcing Sunday's successful test, said ships and planes of all countries now can return to the target area.

The test program in the central Pacific, between the Hawaiian and Fijian islands, was over, it said. The tests were scheduled to end Feb. 15.

The announcement of the test, unlike that of the first rocket launching Jan. 20, did not mention the rocket's range of accuracy.

FIRST ROCKET'S PATH

The first rocket, travelled 7,700 miles and crashed into the ocean within 1 1/2 miles of its target after speeding 16,000 miles an hour.

The latest test was said to have been "in accordance with the plan of perfecting a more powerful multi-stage ballistic rocket."

The official news agency Tass said the rocket proved again the "extreme exactness" of Russia's guidance system. It said the rocket's dummy final stage hit the target area at 7:58 p.m. Moscow time 1:38 p.m. AST.

WORLD DAY OF PRAYER
For many years it has been the Women's Missionary Societies of the Canadian Churches which promoted the observance of the World Day of Prayer. Now the Women's Inter-Church Council represents all Protestant Church women.

This year, as for many years past, the service will be held on the first Friday in Lent—March 4th, in Gower Street Church at 3 p.m.

The theme for this meeting is "Labourers together with God."

Supersonic Fashion Show By Pepperrell Officers' Wives

PEPPERRELL AFB, Nfld.—A supersonic fashion show, sponsored by the officers' wives of the 437th USAF Hospital, highlighted the Pepperrell Officers' Wives Club January Luncheon.

Since the medical staff of the United States Air Force play an important role in the design of space suits, the wives thought it only fitting that they be responsible for designing fashionable wearing apparel for travel to the planets Mars, Mercury, Saturn, Pluto and Venus.

After much scientific research, five teams (3 ladies in each team), produced what they thought to be the most original, durable and comfortable creations this side of the solar system.

For travel to the planet Mercury, a two-piece space suit, with accessories to match, was modeled by Mrs. C. W. Winney.

Modeling formal evening attire suitable for the planet Venus was Mrs. J. W. Choate. This goddess of love, full-length gown, was covered with a transparent fabric with front and rear butterfly bows. The model wore the latest hair style with the planet's most precious stones, "venushrinites," set in combs around her head.

Mrs. R. E. Bulman's original creation of heated long Johns for sightseers to the planet Pluto, was considered outstanding for its comfort and durability. This suit was also fitted with built-in heating pad, chin-chilla ear muffs and mink-lined sandals to match.

For overseas assignments to the planet Mars, Mrs. S. S. Rhodes modeled the women's morning chore outfit. Due to frequent calls from husbands, the garment was designed with press-button, two-way radio, fitting neatly around the waist—the radio being equipped with all Martian channels, plus moon and earth plug-ins.

Women who have switched to brunette hair must not think they need to have black eyebrows. They should try brown or brownish-black. Lashes however, you prefer and complete the job by using a clear, clear red lipstick.

Hot orange shades of cosmetics may turn you into a charmer during the day when natural light complements the colour. However, it is best to switch to a new hue for night wear since lights add yellow tones to the face.

Women with large noses must watch what they do with their coiffures. Hair pulled severely back from the face tends to emphasize the nose. This is especially true with a pony tail which young women seem to like.

When bras and girdle become shapeless and stretched, it's time to pluck them out. They may be delightfully comfortable at this stage, but they are not giving your figure any support.

When a man and his wife offer to drive a lone woman home, the husband should take the woman to her door and unlock it for her.

The Doctor Says

By HAROLD THOMAS HYMAN, M.D.
Written for NEA Service

HOMEMAKERS HAVE GOOD REASON TO BE TIRED

So many housewives write in to say that they're fatigued, worn-out, done-in and the like. Most of these letters end with request for the name of some vitamin pills, pep-up medicines, iron tonic or gland shots they can take to make them "feel young again."

Dear ladies, I wish there were a magic formula I could send you or your doctor. Unfortunately, there isn't.

And if there were, I'm not sure you would profit, more than temporarily, by taking the magical medicine. In point of fact, I'm quite sure you'd be worse off in the long run.

I regard fatigue as a warning signal rather than a complaint. To me it means that the complainant is approaching or has reached the limit of his or her physical resources.

If that limit is for short of the limits of others or if that limit is less now than it was in days gone by, the complaint merits investigation by a physician.

Now most housewives who complain of fatigue have every right to be fatigued. With no "union laws," they put in gruelling days and nights with not even a day off each week or a two-week vacation each year. To push them beyond the limits of their fatigue with medication of any kind makes no more sense than beating a tired horse to drain the last bit of energy he possesses.

Instead of chasing the proverbial pot of gold that lies at the foot of the rainbow, the tired housewife would profit most by getting first a bill of health from her doctor, and second by organizing her housework somewhat in accordance with the human rights labor demands and gets in factories.

I am completely aware of the differences that exist between shop work and housework.

I know, too, that her day is not over until the evening meal has been served, pots and dishes washed and put away and the children tucked in bed.

None of this will prevent an intelligent woman from organizing her work so that she is able to break her day in half by taking a two-hour break for a nap or a reading session.

And, if she can rid herself of the idea that no one in the house can perform her duties as expertly as she can, she ought to be to delegate foolproof chores to the awkward squad that lives under her roof.

Even the clumsiest husband can be made into a short-order cook. The junior scout who's learned to draw a six-shooter is a possibility as a dishwasher. And the young lady of the house who's able to put up her hair should be able to make a bed and manage a broom or a vacuum cleaner.

It's worth a try, mother.

Fashion Tips

The inept bodice has been on the way for sometime; actually it is an outgrowth of the chemise. Popular American designers have given it tremendous impetus in the recent New York showings and assure it a prominent place in spring fashions. One designer shows the lengthened look to the bodice and waist by styling a fitted midriff that extends from below the bustline to the top of the hipbone.

In dressy dresses printed chiffon will make their debut come spring.

THE STORY: Orrin Applegate has been asked to handle a personal injury suit by Gideon Weeks, proprietor of a medicine show in Syracuse. The case involves a boy, attached to the show, who was hit by a wagon.

XVII

Madam looked from Lissie to me with arched brows. One could see that she was not pleased.

"Is this true, Orrin?" she asked.

"Not exactly," I told her. "I've been asked by their Mr. Weeks to take a personal injury case on a contingent basis."

"But you have not bound yourself?"

"Not, Madam, until I have investigated the evidence carefully."

"Madam Cissie," Lissie said with vast sobriety, "Orrin always can be relied upon to look before he leaps. There's no fun reading a story when you always know what's going to happen in the next chapter." Her temper suddenly was up, as happened sometimes so unaccountably. "Orrin Applegate," she said sharply, "do you have to be a model young man? If just once in your life you'd do something unexpected, like—like getting in a fight or cutting up a caper!"

"One filibbergibbet in a neighborhood is enough," I retorted.

Madam seemed to be distraught. "I wonder, Orrin," she said, "if you would escort me across the street." She glanced around the company half humorously. "A small matter of business up on which I wish to consult my attorney."

After we had crossed the street and mounted Madam's porch, the door was opened to us by the butler, Oscar. He was a strange-looking creature, and I marveled that so dainty a person as Madam could tolerate him about her. I wondered if she knew how truly weird a servant she harbored, with his knife throwing out in her barn.

She led me into her little office and dismissed Oscar. "That will be all," she said to him. "You may go to bed, Oscar."

He stood still and expressionless, his pale eyes unwinking before he turned on his heel and withdrew. Perhaps I made some movement, perhaps I even shuddered. At any rate, Madam became aware of my aversion for the man.

"Oscar," she said, "fails to make a happy impression. But he has qualities, Orrin. I do not know what I would do without him."

TODAY'S ETIQUZ MEMO

Don't accept future invitations if once was enough, but do, while you're there, act as if every minute is wonderful.

When you ask the person who answers a phone to give a message to a third party, give your name, too. It's both necessary and courteous.

had been in shadows. I did not tell her, but as Madam leaned forward and the light fell upon her features, I knew why the face of Gideon Weeks had seemed so familiar. For an instant the resemblance between Madam Janeway and Gideon Weeks was as the resemblance between twins.

"Madam," I said, "I shall make closer investigation." I retired in a troubled state. Oddly I wished I could lay the facts before Lissie. Never before had I considered her advice worth following.

"ASTRO-GUIDE" By Ceean

For Thursday, February 4

Present—For You and Yours... Some disappointment, possibly through the news, seems likely. Early morning malefic configurations start the day off wrong, denoting deception and possible fraud. Impulse may predominate over reason and overenthusiasm may get the upper hand of judgment. "Lay low" today!

Past... The Series E government "baby bonds" were put on sale 25 years ago today. They were the first government investment within reach of most pocketbooks since the Liberty Bonds of World War I.

Future... A method of determining the quality of meat of live animals will be developed. Lean and fat areas will show on a meter as a result of differing electrical conductivity.

Between Us Women

By RUTH MILLETT

CORNY BUT TRUE; LIFE IS A ROMANTIC THING

"Life is a romantic business. It is painting a picture, not doing a sum; but you have to make the romance..."

It was a man who said that—but it is women who need most to remember it.

Caught up in the endless small demands on our time, strength and patience we too often forget that life should be a romantic business and it is largely up to us to make it so.

By our own attitude we can make a family project a grim affair or a gay adventure. A wife and mother can even turn a vacation into a grim business if she carries on about how hard it is to get ready for the trip—instead of talking about all the fun ahead.

By the way we treat our husbands we can make them feel gallant or grumpy—and that applies even when we are asking them to do something they don't particularly want to do.

By the way we treat our husbands we can make a day pleasant or unhappy. If we harp on the little irritations that aren't really important instead of concentrating on the good that comes our way, no day is going to offer very much.

By what we choose to consider gracious, understanding and as attractive as we can possibly be we can keep romance alive in our marriages.

Yes, the women need to remember that life isn't all work and responsibility and duty—but that it should hold fun and gaiety and romance. It will if we make up our minds that it is going to, and see to it that it does.

Household Hints

In order to save time for seasoning roasts and fried or broiled meats, keep a shaker on your herb shelf into which has been mixed salt, pepper and onion salt.

Prudential Vice-President Has Optimistic Forecast

Continuing growth for most segments of the economy is forecast by the economic forecast of The Prudential Insurance Company of America, issued recently by Robert M. Green, Vice-President in charge of Canadian operations.

Canada's Gross National Product will climb past the $37 billion mark during 1960, the forecast predicts, an increase of seven per cent over 1959.

While the reversal of the two year decline in investment spending was one of the most important changes which took place during 1959, the probability of a continued tight rein on the supply of money will be a deterrent to capital spending in 1960, the forecast cautions.

Predictions for other segments of the economy:

—Consumer spending up a record $1.9 billion to $24 billion as consumers save less, spending more on rising incomes.

—Continued recovery and higher spending both here and in the U.S. will mean more active trade. There will be gains in both exports and imports, with the trade deficit steady at $1.5 billion.

—A sizeable inventory buildup early in the year as the steel shortage eases. Growth over the balance of the year will be slower in line with rising sales.

Farm stocks will be up a little: an increase of $350 million in government spending primarily from Provincial and Municipal bodies.

—It is reasonable to expect, the report observes, that capital spending in the next year or two will be more restrained than was the case in the investment boom during the latter part of the fifties. There will nevertheless be a significant improvement over the reduced level experienced during 1958 and nearly 1959. The recent performance of such leading indicators as construction contract awards and machine tool orders support this line of reasoning.

Unemployment poses much less of a problem at the beginning of 1960 than it did one year ago. "Still," notes the forecast, "the current five per cent rate indicates that some slack continues to exist in the economy. There is little doubt that the vast expansion in capital facilities of a few years ago has substantially increased worker productivity, and this is probably the chief reason that the recovery in employment is lagging a bit behind output. Continued expansion during 1960 will probably reduce unemployment to its prosperity norm."

The consumer price index remained within the narrow range of 125-126 using the price level in 1913 as 100 from the very beginning of recovery in mid-1958 through July of last year, and then began to inch upward. The absence of any substantial gains in wholesale prices, continues the forecast, is a factor limiting the increase in the retail index during the early part of 1960.

The Prudential economists end the forecast with the caution that as the economy approaches near-capacity, in later months, business demand for labor and materials, and consumer demand for goods, strengthened by rising incomes and credit, are likely to put the price spiral in motion again.

John-on Insurance Offices Ltd. was the recently appointed agents in Newfoundland for Prudential Insurance Company.

$3,000 Reward For Arrest Of Thugs

VANCOUVER (CP) — Rewards totalling $3,000 were offered Tuesday for the arrest and conviction of two thugs who brutally beat a trade union officer during the week-end.

The national headquarters of the Brotherhood in Ottawa announced a $2,000 reward for the arrest and conviction of Greaves' assailants. The 120,000-member British Columbia Federation of Labor CLC added another $1,000.

Meanwhile, Greaves was in satisfactory condition in hospital.

Dave West and George Red Hill, Brotherhood organizers, said they have been warned that they have been selected as the next victims of violence.

Premier feels "better" VICTORIA (CP) — Premier W. A. C. Bennett met Tuesday for the first time since he underwent a kidney operation more than two weeks ago and said he felt "wonderful" and hopes to be in the legislature soon. "The doctors tell me I'll be back in time to read the budget speech," the premier told reporters in the brief conference. The premier is tentatively scheduled for Feb. 12.

Jacoby On Bridge

'LIMIT RAISES' NOT REALLY NEW

By OSWALD JACOB

North and South were employing one of the newer bridge gadgets, called "limit raises." This isn't really new since limit raises were part of the Culbertson system of 1932 and were then abandoned for 25 years.

When you play limit raises the jump to three for your partner's suit is strong but not forcing and North felt quite properly that his hand was too strong to take any chance on missing a game. He also reasoned that he had too much high card strength for an immediate jump to game.

His two-diamond response turned out to be a happy choice. When he jumped to game on the second round

Tonight:

Race Close As
Guards vs Feild

With the Senior Hockey race for the three play-off slots the closest in years Guards and Feildians will continue the second round at the Stadium to-night. They'll clash at 8 o'clock.

A win for Feildians to-night will assure them of at least a first place tie after the second round. Should Guards take the victory they'll be tied with St. Ed Woolgar and Fred Henderson for second slot. A tie game to-night will move Feild into first and leave the Guards in fourth position.

Both St. Pat's and the Feildians have six points going into the fixture while St. Bon's own five and the Guards having three. The race for the three play-off slots is the closest in years. Should the Guards win to-night there will be only one point between each place as the third and final round opens. St. Bon's and St. Pat's will finish the second round on Saturday night.

In their first round meeting Feildians and Guards battled to a 3-3 deadlock. Feildians are expected to use the same lineup that edged St. Bon's 3-2 last Saturday night. They'll have John Carter in goal with Bill Martin, Nev Henderson, Dodo Ereen, Max Burt and Doug Woolgar on defence.

The "Terrific Trio" of Stan Breen, Bud Duffett and Doug Squires will again see plenty of ice time for Feild.

Backing up the first string will be hard-working Chum Pierce, Ralph Rowsell and Harold Ryan, while the other combination will come from Junior Thistle, Bob Hollett, Ed Woolgar and Fred Henderson.

Rollie Clarke is still out of town and will not be in uniform for Guards, but Fred North may return. Guards will likely give goalie Ron Skirving a defence of Max Howell, Gordon Butler, Bern Goobie and Murray Chaplin for the game and will have their forwards in doubt.

If North returns he'll likely team up with Warren England and Cyril Ivany. Art Pearce will work on the line if North is still out. Bob Badcock, Bill Taylor, Ed Thistle, Nelson Kearley, Bern Billard, Rex Smith, Doug Chalk and maybe Bill Drover will round out the Guards forward lines but no strings were released.

Individual scoring honours will likely see Doug Squires of Feild increasing his lead to-night.

The scoring race going into the game to-night has Squires with ten points while Tom "City" Murphy of St. Bon's has nine points and Jack Withers of St. Pat's had eight points to his credit. All have played five games.

Pee Wee

Rings Gets 2-0 Shutout

By WILSON BUTLER
Rookie Jimmy Ring saw his first action in goal for Gunners yesterday afternoon and he sparked his team to a 2-0 shutout victory over Signallers. In the lone Pee Wee game played at the Stadium yesterday afternoon.

Ring blocked the seven drives that were fired his way while Wayne Jewers and Tommy Grouchy were notching the Gunners' markers. Both goals came in the first period with Dell Kenny picking up the assist on the first goal.

Signallers had two ties to their credit going into the game and played hard for a score but were unable to beat netminder Ring. There were no penalties called by referees Neil Corcoran and Brian Gibbons.

Following the game All-Star coach John Doyle put 60 hopefuls through an hour practice. Players missing from the workout were Roy Mercer, Jimmy Vavassour, Buddy Dave, Fred Nofall, Kevin Maloney, Cluny Rideout, Kevin Philpott, Jimmy Fowler and Pat Murphy. These players are to attend the next practice on Friday at 5:15 p.m.

This afternoon Lancasters and Hurricanes will clash at 4:30 while Victory will take on Magnificent at 5:15. The 4:30 p.m. game on Friday will have Troopers and Black Watch in action. Saturday morning Vanguard and York will meet at 8:00 while Troopers and Infantry face off at 8:45.

Soccer Pool Has Dream Coming True

For the British punter—or better — winning the soccer pool is equivalent to striking oil or hitting the mother lode of a gold mine. Now it has happened to John Farrow. The Associated Press sports editor in Britain. Here is his reaction.

By JOHN FARROW
LONDON (AP)—The week a life-long dream came true — I won the top prize in the British soccer pools.

I correctly forecast eight tied matches. The wife immediately started talking about cruises around the world, a mink coat, a new house and a gleaming big car. Why not?

Only the other week the lucky winner pocketed £300,000 about $801,000 at current exchange rates for a two penny two cents bet. Winners of £200,000 ($534,000) and £100,000 ($247,000) seem almost commonplace.

It's the Briton's dream of getting rich quick. I've been dreaming about it ever since I left school 20 years ago. And I've been trying to hit the jackpot all that time.

This time it happened. We've got to wait, however until to-night to find out what the win is worth.

PEANUTS IN POT
But this week, the experts tell me, is one of the weeks in the year when the jackpot is going to be... well, just peanuts about $27, I'm told.

"You'll pick up a few pounds, but don't start going out on the town," a pools official warned. "There are thousands of winners this week."

Thousands of other people, out of the 12,000,000 who try their luck every week, are saying just the same thing.

But you've no idea of the thrill behind getting those eight ties and the perfect score of 24 points.

This is the way it works: You try to forecast eight tied matches. Each tie wins a maximum three points. You get two for a winner away from home and 1½ for a winner at home.

If only one person hits the perfect 24 points then his pickings are big. But if there are lots of draws then thousands

HC Training

At Holy Cross to-night training will begin for all members trying out for the various teams. Each week one night and sometimes two will be used for the showing of films and physical training.

For this work Holy Cross will use a professional trainer. To-night no gym clothes will be necessary as films only will be shown, the rest of the evening the trainer will meet coaches, managers and players to outline his program to them.

Game Changed

The exhibition game scheduled between the Stalwarts and St. Kevin's at the Bartlett Memorial Arena on Sunday afternoon has been changed until February 14th.

The change in the scheduled contest was necessary to allow St. Pat's Junior hockey squad to play the Bell Island Junior All-Stars in an exhibition game this Sunday. They'll clash at 2:30 p.m.

Banned For Life

NEW YORK (AP)—The co-managers of former middleweight champion Carmine Basilio—John DeJohn and Joseph Metro—were banned for life from boxing operations in New York State today by the state athletic commission.

Norman Rothschild, Syracuse matchmaker and promoter, was fined $2,000 as a result of making payments to an unlicensed person.

Rothschild, as a matchmaker, was fined $1,000, and the Arena Boxing Club, which he heads, was fined another $1,000. The commission also "formally re-matchmaker-promoter."

Rockwell Leads In Playdowns
As Lyons Upsets Bud Fisher

GOOSE BAY DEFEATS CORNER BROOK 12-6; CITY EDGES BELL ISLAND

BELL ISLAND—Staff—Norm Rockwell and his St. John's rink took over the lead in the British Consols playdowns here yesterday. With each of the five entries having played six of their eight games the City foursome still have their biggest tests to come.

John Lyons and the rookie rink from Goose Bay came up with the big victory yesterday knocking off Bud Fisher and the Corner Brook defending champions 12-6. Rockwell edged Bell Island in a night thriller 11-10 with a great effort in the twelfth end to take the top spot.

Other action at the Curling Club yesterday saw Corner Brook double Bell Island 12-6 while Goose Bay walloped Grand Falls 19-4 and St. John's took Grand Falls 11-6.

Rockwell's two big games are still to come. He'll face Fisher and Corner Brook this morning and will wind up his play with Goose Bay on Friday morning.

John Lyons and Bud Fisher provided the first of two great night games with Goose Bay gaining the big upset to date. A dark horse at the start of the playdowns Lyons has moved into second place tie with Fisher and is a definite contender for the honours.

Lyons hit for two in the third end after Fisher had singles in the first and second to tie the match. A single by Lyons in the fourth and one by Fisher in the fifth had it 3-3 after the five ends. Lyons got three in the sixth end to take the lead he never lost. It was his best effort in the playdowns to date.

Three in the ninth after Fisher got two in the seventh moved Lyons out front 9-5. Goose Bay finished with two in the tenth and a single in the twelfth while Fisher got one in the eleventh.

QUEBEC (CP)—The field for the Lieutenant-Governor's Trophy—most coveted award in Quebec's 47th annual International Bouspiel—was narrowed down to 16 rinks Wednesday.

Eight of 24 qualifiers were eliminated in first round play between the rinks who reached the quarter-finals of the Chateau International Trophy and the Omega International Trophy. Eight other qualifiers—the rinks who reached the Francois Jobin Gold Cup quarter-finals—drew a bye in the first round.

Second round play for Lieutenant-Governor's will be held today.

Ontario and Quebec each have three unbeaten rinks while the other is E.L. Hickman's St. John's Nfld. entry.

Hickman Wednesday won 8-4 over the only other rink—Kirkland Lake, Ont., skipped by Orval Archer — that entered Wednesday's play with an undefeated record.

Rockwell Leads In Playdowns
As Lyons Upsets Bud Fisher

GOOSE BAY DEFEATS CORNER BROOK 12-6; CITY EDGES BELL ISLAND

BELL ISLAND—Staff—Norm Rockwell and his St. John's rink took over the lead in the British Consols playdowns here yesterday. With each of the five entries having played six of their eight games the City foursome still have their biggest tests to come.

John Lyons and the rookie rink from Goose Bay came up with the big victory yesterday knocking off Bud Fisher and the Corner Brook defending champions 12-6. Rockwell edged Bell Island in a night thriller 11-10 with a great effort in the twelfth end to take the top spot.

Other action at the Curling Club yesterday saw Corner Brook double Bell Island 12-6 while Goose Bay walloped Grand Falls 19-4 and St. John's took Grand Falls 11-6.

Rockwell's two big games are still to come. He'll face Fisher and Corner Brook this morning and will wind up his play with Goose Bay on Friday morning.

John Lyons and Bud Fisher provided the first of two great night games with Goose Bay gaining the big upset to date. A dark horse at the start of the playdowns Lyons has moved into second place tie with Fisher and is a definite contender for the honours.

Lyons hit for two in the third end after Fisher had singles in the first and second to tie the match. A single by Lyons in the fourth and one by Fisher in the fifth had it 3-3 after the five ends. Lyons got three in the sixth end to take the lead he never lost. It was his best effort in the playdowns to date.

Three in the ninth after Fisher got two in the seventh moved Lyons out front 9-5. Goose Bay finished with two in the tenth and a single in the twelfth while Fisher got one in the eleventh.

CeeBees And Gander
Battle To 8-8 Tie

Continuing their tour of Central Newfoundland the Conception Bay CeeBees and the Gander All-Stars battled to a 8-8 deadlock at the Gander Gardens last night.

The All-Stars scored three times in the first two periods and netted a brace in the final stanza to account for their eight tallies while the visitors scored four in the first and third frames.

The Conception Bay CeeBees fought from behind a one goal lead late in the first period to open up a 4-3 edge after the initial stanza, with some sharp shooting.

Jim Zimmerman, Bill Ireland and Carl Bursey connected for the home towners in the second stanza to take over the lead 6-4 while the CeeBees failed to beat the All-Stars netminder Bob Marks.

The hustling CeeBees exploded in the third period and with the Faulkner brothers, Alex and Lindy combining at 18:56 they managed to grab a 8-8 tie.

Carl Penny, Lindy Faulkner and Alfie Hiscock netted a brace each for the CeeBees while singletons went to Jim Kennedy and Alex Faulkner. With Alex goal tying the game in the final stanza.

Bill Ireland and Jim Zimmerman notched two each for the home towners with single goals going to John Murphy, Reg Heenan, Carl Bursey and MacIntyre.

Six of the games eight penalties handed out by referees Morris Doyle and Gordon Noseworthy went to the visiting CeeBees, two of which were ten minute misconducts. Alex Faulkner and Jim Kennedy were the two bad men in the game each picked up a misconduct penalty.

The Gander All-Stars controlled the play in the first two periods as they built up their 6-4 lead but gave way to the powerful CeeBees in the final period.

Both goalies made good stops although they allowed eight discs to get by them.

Bob Marks, between the pipes for the All-Stars made his best grabs in the second and final periods with the CeeBees buzzing around the nets, while the CeeBees netminder was sharp in the first two stanzas.

Victoria Makes Finals

Victoria moved into the Conception Bay North Intermediate Hockey finals against Upper Island Cove at the Harbour Grace Stadium last night as they defeated Conception Harbour 13-4. The best of seven games finals will open on Saturday night.

Three Games

At PWC Arena

Civil Service and Mercantile Hockey swings into action to-night at the Prince of Wales Arena with three games on tap.

In the Civil Service League two games will be played. In the first encounter scheduled for 7:00 p.m., second place Fish-CNR will tangle with last place Treasury. Fish-CNR dropped their last outing to the front running R.C.A.F. crew 4-2 and lead the league by three points. Treasury on the other hand are in the cellar, one point behind the Mental squad and five behind second place Fish-CNR.

However the lowly Treasury looked good in the last encounter in dropping the Mental team 8-5 in the second game of last week's doubleheader.

The second game of the weekly double-header will have RCAF squad looking for their eighth win of the season when they take on Mental at 8:30.

The Mental squad however, will be out to put the clamps on the hot RCAF team and try to increase their third place lead over Treasury.

The final game in the Mercantile regular schedule will be played after the Civil Service twinbill, with first place E. F. Barnes facing off against third place Bankers. A win for the Barnes team will leave the "Tellers" tied with Bowings for the third and last play-off spot. If the Bankers should come up with a win or a tie, then they will move into the semi-finals against Hickmans, while E. F. Barnes get the bye into the finals.

The score was tied 5-5 at the end of regulation time. Each team came up with a goal in the first ten minutes to keep the score deadlocked. K. McCormick came up with the biggest tally in the game at the 2:00 minute mark of the sudden death overtime for Harbour Grace to take the hard earned win.

In an afternoon game at the Harbour Grace stadium yesterday, Harbour Grace Convent set back a strong bid from Freshwater 7-6 in High School action.

The score was tied 5-5 at the end of regulation time. Each team came up with a goal in the first ten minutes to keep the score deadlocked. K. McCormick came up with the biggest tally in the game at the 2:00 minute mark of the sudden death overtime for Harbour Grace to take the hard earned win.

There were only three penalties handed out with the losing team Freshwater, getting nabbed for two.

The win for Harbour Grace moved them into the finals against Bay Roberts. Bay Roberts defeated Freshwater 10-1 in the first game of the round robin played on Monday.

Tim Fahey lead the artillery line with three goals for Harbour Grace. M. Murphy, K. McCormick, L. Ryan and Gordon Hunt registered singles in the 7-6 win.

H. Butt scored three for Freshwater with A. Snow setting a brace in regulation time. Clayton Parsons scored the sixth Freshwater goal in the first overtime period to round out the scoring.

The MacCurtis basketballers will work out at the Macpherson gym tonight at 8 p.m. Any members of the Association interested in making a berth on the squad are asked to be at the practice.

The Junior All-Stars will hold an important practice at the stadium tonight. The drill is set for 6:15 p.m. and all players are asked to make a special effort to attend.

St. Pat's senior hockey squad will drill at the stadium following the Senior League fixture. The workout is set for 10:15 p.m. and all players are requested to be on hand.

The MacCurtis basketballers will work out at the Macpherson gym tonight at 8 p.m. Any members of the Association interested in making a berth on the squad are asked to be at the practice.

DEBORAH KERR
ROSSANO BRAZZI
MAURICE CHEVALIER IN
"COUNT YOUR BLESSINGS"

When an English girl marries a Frenchman with a roving eye she has her work cut out for her, as is proved in MGM's sophisticated comedy-drama, "Count Your Blessings," starring Deborah Kerr, Rossano Brazzi and Maurice Chevalier.

There are laughs galore but also serious moments in this CinemaScope and color film version of Nancy Mitford's best-selling novel, "The Blessing," for which exterior scenes were filmed on location in London, Paris and the French chateau country.

The story concerns Grace Allingham (Deborah Kerr), who marries the French nobleman, Charles-Edouard de Valhubert (Rossano Brazzi) after a brief but impetuous wartime courtship. The exigencies of war separate Grace from her husband while their seven-year-old son grows up. When they are again reunited, she is faced with the problem of making the adjustment of living in a foreign country (France) with a stranger-husband who has had quite a past with the ladies.

Jealousy and an incomprehension of a Frenchman's point of view about life and love finally cause Grace to leave her husband, against the advice of the latter's uncle, the worldly-wise Duc de St. Cloud (Maurice Chevalier). She takes their son, the precocious Sigismund, back to England, but he is to spend a part of each year with his father in Paris.

This comes close to being the undoing of a marriage which seemingly has failed but whose proponents are still in love with each other. When Charles attempts a reconciliation with his wife, little Sigi, who enjoys being spoiled by each of his separated parents, intercepts his father's phone calls and burns his letters. But the juvenile plot eventually is discovered and all works out happily in the end.

"Count Your Blessings" has been given a sumptuous production by Karl Tunberg, who also adapted the screen play from Miss Mitford's novel. The story lends itself to a fascinating "Cook's Tour" of London and Paris, with the English sequences filmed against such locales as Windsor Castle, Kensington Gardens, Westminster Bridge, the Houses of Parliament, Tower of London, Hampton Court Palace and Hyde Park Square, while Paris landmarks include the Palais Bourbon, Champs Elysees, Place de la Concorde, Notre Dame and Place Joffre. Other scenes were filmed in the famous Tour d'Argent Restaurant, on a Seine sight-seeing launch and in several of France's most magnificent and historic chateaux.

Deborah Kerr's sophisticated role in "Count Your Blessings" is in striking contrast to her role of the frightened girl in "Separate Tables" and her equally lauded dramatic part in "The Journey." Rossano Brazzi last appeared in "South Pacific" and "A Certain Smile," while Maurice Chevalier is still receiving world-wide accolades for "Gigi."

HOLLYWOOD TODAY

New Film Decade Will Be Known As The 'Sexy Sixties'

By ERSKINE JOHNSON
HOLLYWOOD. (NEA) — There are no doubts about it in Hollywood.

The new decade holds the promise of becoming "The Sexy Sixties" for theater motion picture screens.

The Sexy Sixties may bring an answer to the question.

"How far can Hollywood go with movies that are hotter-than-ever?"

The answer may be classification of some movies with the label, "For Adults Only."

In an attempt to win back their lost audience, adults, Hollywood moviemakers have been turning to more adult themes. They have ranged to date from premarital relations in "Happy Anniversary" to homosexuality and cannibalism in "Suddenly, Last Summer," a nightmarish movie which indicates Hollywood may be moving fast.

How far can Hollywood go? Those favoring Adults Only movies argue that it is the only logical answer and that classification is not censorship. Theater owners and others opposed to classification insist it is censorship.

WE WILL BE hearing more and more arguments on this question in 1960. One fact is obvious. Hollywood no longer is holding the line on its own self-policed censorship code which once guaranteed wholesome family entertainment.

Sex, at the adult level, has found a place on the screen in Hollywood's competition with television, foreign imports and other forms of recreation for adult customers. As Director Alfred Hitchcock says:

"Sex has a definite place, but only if it motivates or progresses the story. Give audiences too much sex—or in bad taste—and they become embarrassed or laugh at the wrong place. The trick is to time the reaction; then give them something YOU want them to laugh at."

But how many producers of movies have good taste, and know the trick?

But Hollywood is facing more than just "How far can we go?" problems in the '60s. There's talk of federal film control on exports, with some congressmen and state department officials believing they are giving foreign audiences the "wrong impression" of life in the United States.

The big Hollywood backlog of post-1948 movies may be released to television—and the Theater Owners of America are demanding more products from Hollywood to help keep theaters open.

THERE IS UNREST in film unions and guilds over television wage scales and residual payments on all films leased to TV. With TV busy on its own housecleaning projects, the Motion Picture Association of America is in high gear pushing a special promotion campaign: "1960—The Big Year of Motion Pictures."

Meanwhile, Hollywood is facing a small group of top box office stars demanding, and getting, "out-of-line" salaries and profit percentages.

And there is a shadow of public revolt against stars establishing residence in Europe to escape U. S. income taxes. Block-booking of movies, an old Hollywood problem, is back. Uncle Sam will take a number of studios and producers to court in March, in an antitrust suit, charging illegal block-booking of films for television.

BUT THE ANSWER to the question, "How far can Hollywood go with hotter-than-ever movies?" is the biggest hurdle for the film industry.

And 1960, I'm sure, will be remembered as the year in which more than just popcorn was popping in movie-

Pianist Wins Coveted Award

LONDON (CP)—William Stevens, young Montreal pianist, has won one of the Harriet Cohen international music awards for 1960.

He is to receive the Commonwealth Medal. A spokesman for Miss Cohen said the decision was based on his playing of a piano concerto by Canadian composer Violet Archer.

The awards—about 20 are made annually—were founded by the late Sir Arnold Bax, master of the Queen's music.

Miss Cohen is ranked next to Dame Myra Hess, generally regarded as Britain's leading woman pianist.

UTAH'S STATE SEAL. On the State Seal of Utah, the beehive stands for industry and the sego lilies are in memory of the time when the lily bulbs were eaten by many of the Mormon colonists to fight off starvation during early settlement.

NAMED FOR BIRD. Phoenix, Ariz. was so-named for the famed bird of ancient Egypt, who was supposed to burn himself on an altar every 500 years and then rise again, young and beautiful. The name was suggested for the town because early settlers saw signs of prehistoric farming in the region.

VERSATILE MATERIAL. Glass fiber, now one of the most versatile manufacturing materials, was unknown commercially until the 1930s. From it now are made air filters for furnaces; heat, cold and noise insulation; battery separators; insect screening and fine curtains and draperies. In combination with plastics, it is used in furniture, bathtubs, sports car bodies and luggage.

U.K. Students To Find Work In Canada

BRISTOL, England (CP)—Bristol University has formed a club to encourage undergraduates to visit Canada during the summer holidays. Officials say there is a rush to join.

The idea is for students to take advantage of their 12-week vacation to go to Canada, where they would take temporary jobs.

Oxford and Cambridge already have similar schemes, but this is believed to be the first time a provincial university has promoted such a venture.

Club officials say the idea may help dispel the student reputation for irresponsibility.

BAGPIPES

Bagpipes probably originated in southwestern Asia. This instrument, now considered distinctively Scottish, is said to have been brought to Britain by Roman invaders nearly 2,000 years ago.
